Lecture by Mia Münster-Swendsen, professor (MSO), Master in the Faculty of Arts or science & PhD., RUC *

The History of the diocese of Roskilde is far from boring, and in this lecture the listeners are invited on a trip back in time characterized by innovation, growth, and changes in nearly every area of society, all accompanied by political intrigues, violence, and assassinations. We will meet an abundance of distinctive and controversial figures who led the bishopric through its first centuries. It's a tale full of vigor and vitality, surprising occurrences, and a lot of unanswered questions surrounding Denmark in the Middle Ages, some of which current historians still struggle with. It will be a story about the making of the Danish church and the changing of power structures, all of that which contributed to the foundation of the nation that grew out of one of the most exciting, turbulent, and decisive epochs of Danish history.

Place: Romu- Museum of Roskilde, Sankt Ols Stræde 3, 4000 Roskilde

13.00 For better or for worse, a thousand years of faith in Roskilde

The famous Ely-document shows that the episcopal power came to Roskilde in 1022, but what were the actual consequences? Which impact did the coming of the Reformation have in Roskilde? And how is today's religiousness reflected in Roskilde?

Three experts will in a panel discussion try to answer some of these very interesting questions: Medieval archeologist and curator Jesper Langkilde; Sociologist of religion and curator Laura Maria Schütze and director of Roskilde Museum Morten Thomsen Højsgaard. It will be possible for the audience to ask questions to the three experts in the panel. The discussion will be managed by journalist and editor Rasmus Birkerød.

*All the lectures and the panel discussion take place in ROMU, in the great hall of the Museum of Roskilde.

Place: Romu- Museum of Roskilde, Sankt Ols Stræde 3, 4000 Roskilde

14.00- 14.30 Vallensved Gospel choir

The Jubilee song “Roskilde Stift bliver 1000 år” by conductor Camilla Frederiksen

Place: Palægården, Stændertorvet 3A, 4000 Roskilde

15.00: “Roskilde-Riim”

Lecture by Jes Fabricius-Møller, Historiographer to the Queen, senior lecturer Dr. Phil *

At the diocesan convention in 1812 Nikolaj Frederik Severin Grundtvig recited his great poem about the history of the church: “Roskilde-Riim”. With Grundtvig as our guide we will follow the road from the spring of Christianity in Denmark to Grundtvig's own age and time.
